After graduation, Eddy had been a science teacher, assistant curator of the Hong Kong Space Museum, and senior scientific officer of the Hong Kong Royal Observatory. He is the first meteorologist to appear regularly on television who was a popular TV weather presenter in the late 1980s and early 1990s. He is currently Assistant Professor in HKU SPACE.

In the forward page of his book, Eddy quotes the famous opening remarks of his favourite television series Star Trek: “These are the intellectual voyages of the mindship of your humber author... its ongoing mission to explore strange new worlds, to seek out new life and new civilizations - to boldly go where no mind has gone before...” This is his aspiration.
“Full Circle” is about the story of a life transformed by long exposure to the peoples and cultures of China and East Asia. The stories of many people in Hong Kong, China and Japan are interwoven into this narrative account, as Ruth shares what it was like to live through a series of major transitions from the Cultural Revolution in 1967, to Hong Kong’s return to China in 1997.

In 1997, Ruth became Director of the Hong Kong Institute of Education. Her life came full circle, as she again settled into the city where she had begun her teaching career 30 years earlier. She is now Professor at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, University of Toronto.
